Dear Daughter,

You truly are a dear daughter. Precious. Perplexing. Sensitive. Strong.
And VERY funny! How lucky I am to have the gift of you in my life!
Time after time, you warm my heart with your smile, your silliness...
and your extraordinary individuality!

I think a lot about how to be the best parent I can be. I try to do and say the right thing.

Even though we both know I sometimes do and say the wrong thing. :(

I'm amazed by how smart and creative and capable you are. How your mind is filled with so many amazing ideas. Do you know how incredible you are?

I wish for you wonderful life adventures, forever friendships, and opportunities to pursue your greatest passions. I wish for people to be gentle with your heart.

While I can't promise you a trouble-free journey, I can tell you that strength is born amidst the struggles and disappointments. I pray often for your guidance, wisdom and protection.

I realize we don't get along all the time. I want so much the best for you, and it's hard for me to let go sometimes. To let you choose, explore, experience and regret.

My love for you is this great. And when you think I can't possibly understand, I hope you realize I just might. I cherish you more than these words can ever say.

From head-to-toe-tip, you are my dear, dear daughter!

This book was written as an explanation mainly to my daughter but also to my husband I put into the best words I could come up with the effects postpartum and mental illness had on me the first year after having our daughter. Experiencing a loss. Becoming suicidal. Then somehow pulling myself out of it, through prayer and constant reassurance from my Husband. It's written as a long letter that I have broken up into short chapters. This isn't half of what we all went through but I think it scratches the surface enough to get the point across. If you or anyone you know has struggled or is struggling with on going postpartum mental issues, I am here and happy to help in any way that I can. Or to direct you to the places that contributed to helping me.
